The Scottsdale Biennale invites artists from around the world to participate in an international art competition for a chance to win valuable industry accolades and prizes that will advance their career as an artist.

Judged in the historic Art District of Downtown Scottsdale, USA, three annual competitions are held honoring different artistic mediums, with the goal of celebrating fine art, discovering new talent and, and challenging artists to master their craft.

The Oil Painting contest closed at the end of last year. Currently the Photography competition is open for entries (deadline Apr 30, 2016), while the Sculpture contest will open on May 1, 2016 (deadline Aug 31, 2016).

Showing work is the one of the best ways to challenge oneself and improve as an artist. History points to the importance of art showcasing and competition for artists looking to have their work recognised in a competitive environment. Named after the world-famous Venice Biennale which started in 1895, the Scottsdale Biennale aims to do just that.

After submitting your artwork, a panel of qualified judges will decide on which pieces truly deserve to be recognized. Once the finalists are chosen, they are invited to send in their artwork to be judged in person and showcased during the exhibition at Wee Gallery. Once the winners are selected from this group of finalists, artists will be contacted and invited to attend the award ceremony.

Entry fee for submission is 40 USD per art piece (20 USD for students).

Eligibility

Open to anyone worldwide.
